

Civil Rights Liaison Responsibilities

Civil Rights Liaison

All applicants must certify that they have a designated civil rights liaison during the application process. The civil rights liaison will serve as the grantee's civil rights contact point and has the responsibility for ensuring that the grantee meets all applicable civil rights requirements. The designee will act as the grantee's liaison in civil rights matters with the Juvenile Justice Programs Office and with the federal Office of Justice Programs.

Civil Rights Liaison

A civil rights liaison who will serve as the grantee's civil rights point of contact and who will be responsible for ensuring that the grantee meets all applicable civil rights requirements must be designated. The designee will act as the grantee's liaison in civil rights matters with the Juvenile Justice Programs Office and with the Federal Office of Justice Programs.

Every Civil Rights Liaison must participate and complete the online training from the Office of Civil Rights. This training can be accessed by <http://ojp.gov/about/ocr/assistance.htm>. Signature certifying eligibility requirements below certifies completion of this training.
